ELECTION OF CAVAGNARO AND FAHEY URGED BY CITIZENS

FAHEY-CAVAGNARO CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE IN RADIO BROADCAST

Fathers And Mothers Of Daly City Are Urged By Mrs. Violet Hauptli To Elect John J. Fahey And Edmund Cavnarno—Demands Councilmen Who Believe In Decency In City Government.

The following are excerpts from an address delivered by Mrs. Violet Hauptli, on Thursday morning of this week, to the fathers and mothers of Daly City:

Ladies and Gentlemen, and especially to the Mothers of Northern California.

Within recent months a matter of grave and serious import to every parent has come to my attention, a matter which is of vital importance to every mother and to every Parent Teacher Association in this grand State of ours, a matter which I firmly believe merits the greatest consideration from every person who believes in the protection of our children from sinister influences which for personal profit seek to implant a warped and unnatural spirit in the hearts of our youth.

The Bingo interests, controlled by a group of unscrupulous men of the calibre commonly known as racketeers, have discovered that they cannot carry on their nefarious trade within the corporate limits of the large cities, and having been driven, in many instances, from profitable locations in the smaller communities, they have evolved a plan to operate within the smaller cities by means of a device which is calculated to deceive the public as to its true nature. These gallant gentlemen seized upon a game which was originally a toy for children, a harmless, pleasant diversion, and with a few simple but ingenious changes, they converted this amusing toy into one of the most lucrative swindles of the present time. I speak of the notorious Bingo game, sometimes called Tango or Keeno, but which in reality is nothing more or less than the children's game of Lotto, with which most of you listeners are doubtless familiar.

The racketeers have been severely dealt with of late and as a result they fear to reopen their so-called books,

NARROW ESCAPE
BY LEAPING FROM BURNING TRUCK

Quick Jump By Driver
Saves Him From Possible
Serious Injury

Frank Ramezzani, 1801 Junipero Serra boulevard, Colma, narrowly escaped burning to death when the truck he was driving caught fire in an unusual manner on the Skyline boulevard, near Crystal Springs, Thursday of last week.

The universal joint of the truck, which belonged to Paul Delucchi, a Colma florist, broke and punctured the gas tank and the fuel was ignited by the exhaust pipe.

Ramezzani, the driver, was unable to stop the truck until it was in flames due to the nature of the damage. He had barely time to leap to safety before the truck was a mass of flames.

The vehicle was loaded with greens going to market from the Colma florist.

Mrs. M. Parodi is godmother for Rosella, Mrs. H. McDonough for Gratia, Miss Angelina Continolo for Mary Lou and Mr. Aladino Sereni is godfather for the three young ladies.

In the afternoon a family dinner was held at the Continolo home to celebrate the christening.

PROGRESS MUST BE WATCHWORD IN THIS ELECTION

Large Numbers of Citizens
Attend District Meetings
Being Held To Urge
Fahey And Cavnarno
Election As Councilmen.

The series of district meetings being held under the auspices of the Fahey-Cavnarno Campaign Committee have been given an enthusiastic reception by the voters of Daly City.

On Friday night, April 3, the inaugural meeting was held at 774 Bellevue avenue. Despite the fact that they were forced to face one of the worst wind and rain storms of the year, the residents of the district turned out in large numbers to meet Candidates Fahey and Cavnarno, and to hear the issues of the campaign discussed by the speakers of the evening.

The second meeting was held at 73 Bruno avenue, in the Castle Garden Tract. Again the large attendance gave evidence of the fact that the citizens are vitally interested in who shall represent them on the City Council and that they are increasingly aware of the present administration, and the candidates sponsored by the administration, are lacking in any definite and progressive program for civic betterment.

The definite and outspoken platform presented by Candidates Fahey and Cavnarno, covering such vital subjects as taxation, provision of adequate recreational facilities for youth of the community, economy in the conduct of the city's business, proper budgeting of the expenses of the various city department and closer co-operation between the citizens and their chosen representatives, met with the wholehearted approval and support of the audience.

Another enthusiastic meeting was held, Wednesday evening, at 62 Mission street.

Further meetings to acquaint the people with their stand on these and other questions of moment, are scheduled for the latter portion of the week.

JEAN HARLOW IN DRAMATIC ROLE
AT LOCAL HOUSE

Vital Story Of Stormy Love
Against Setting On Waterfront

A vivid, sparkling new Jean Harlow came to the screen yesterday with the opening of "Riffraff" at the Daly City Theater next Sunday and Monday.

Given the most dramatic role of her career in a vital story of stormy love against a waterfront setting, Miss Harlow has adopted soft, silky brown hair in place of her famous platinum blonde tresses to more aptly fit the part. It is a revelation. She has never been more lovely, for the new hair, christened "brownette," acts as a frame for her face and the real Jean Harlow is to be seen for the first time.

Miss Harlow is teamed with Spencer Tracy who, as her dashing, swagging, two-fisted lover, gives one of his finest characterizations.

The story, written by Frances Marion, is the chronicle of a great love that survives every test. Both Miss Harlow and Tracy have taken full advantage of its pathos, its laughs, its swift flowing action, to produce a picture which stands out as entertainment above the ordinary.

Surrounding the team is a notable cast. Una Merkel, whose recent hits in "Broadway Melody of 1936" and "It's in the Air" have established her more firmly than ever as one of the screen's foremost comedienne, shows her versatility by portraying a down-trodden wife, with consummate skill, who complains that "all she got out of marriage was two children and the lumbago."

STARS IN SPECTACULAR
NEW RADIO BROADCAST

Jane Froman, lovely radio songstress, will return to her radio audience as featured singer of the new "California's Hour" program, to be broadcast for the first time the night of April 13. Conrad Nagel, noted actor, will enter the field of radio as a master of ceremonies. The program will be on a California network every Monday evening from 9 to 10 o'clock.

Beautiful Jane Froman will return to the air and Conrad Nagel, distinguished actor of stage and screen, will assume the role of master of ceremonies when the spectacular new radio program, "California's Hour," takes to the air waves for the first time on Monday night, April 13, at 9 p. m.

The celebrated pair will be regular featured stars of the program which is to headline various guest artists of the films, stage, and radio, and to have as its musical background the famous music of Dave Broekman and his Orchestra.

"California's Hour" will be dedicated to the glorification of California—its talented artists, its rich historical background, and its foremost communities. The program will be broadcast each Monday night over the Don Lee network of eight stations reaching from the Mexican border to the Oregon Line.

It will originate in station KHJ in Los Angeles, and be broadcast over KFYK in Sacramento, KFRC in San Francisco, KWG in Stockton, KMJ in Fresno, KERN in Bakersfield, KDB in Santa Barbara, and KGB in San Diego.

Nagel who is to be host of the new hour, first gained fame on the stage, and then became a favorite of the films. He has been master of ceremonies at many of Hollywood's most illustrious gatherings, and is a former president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Miss Froman began her career as a radio singer in Cincinnati, and later was the star of many nationwide programs broadcast from Chicago and New York. She was a featured star with Paul Whiteman and his famous band, and was headlined on the Beauty Box Theatre of the air and other major programs.

MODERNS KEEP RIGHT ON GOING TO TRACKS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

When The Druid wrote that men, whose hearts are with the racer and the starting post, may sicken and tire as their years count up, but the votaries of horn and hound fondly love on to the close, with all the constancy of the turtle-dove, he was thinking apparently of conditions of one hundred years ago. Nowadays none of the hunting set can put it on the racing devotees when it comes to maintaining interest in the sport of the course, as distinguished from that of following the hounds.

California is not a hunting country, as is England where The Druid lived, so we cannot pass on the intrinsic merits of his distinction between the two sets. It may be said, by the way, that many experts on hunters believe that, to carry weight, nothing can beat the cross of a high-shouldered cold blooded mare with a thoroughbred. As a general thing, a horse of the hunting type carries 50 pounds more than a race horse.

Some advice as to hunters can be applied, it seems to me, to breeding the blood horse; for example, a large, roomy mare should be put to a small, compact stallion. One point of particular importance in choosing a hunter, The Druid says, is his head. A good one invariably has a small, clean, intelligent face and prominent eyes, with his neck muscular, but not heavy, shoulders well back, short cannon bone, pasterns rather long but not upright, and feet large. Much of which applies to a racer.

All the David Harums have not lived in this country and many an "original," as we read, has closed a horse bargain on the other side of the Atlantic. It is said an American poet must have had such a trader in mind when he wrote of a typical one:

"He'd kiss a queen till he raised a blister,
With his arm round his neck, and his old felt hat on;
He'd address a king by the title of Mister,
And ask him the price of the throne that he sat on."

SHERIFF MC GRATH
WILL OPEN RODEO

San Mateo County will have a special interest in the 1936 Livermore Rodeo, spectacular Wild West event through the presence of Sheriff James J. McGrath as grand marshal of the pioneer parade which annually opens the celebration.

Announcement of McGrath's acceptance is made by Dr. F. L. Herrick, parade director for the Livermore event, which will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 13 and 14. The parade which Sheriff McGrath will lead takes place at 10 a. m. the opening day.

Livermore is preparing for a parade and show which will excel even those of the past, which have won for the event the title of "World's Fastest Rodeo."

Twenty-eight record books have been made and indexed. No publicity classes have been held this year, but chairmen have done splendid work and the newspapers have been most generous with space, approximately 2500 articles having been published covering parent-teacher activities of units, district articles not having as yet been tabulated.

Reservations for installation luncheon to be held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in San Mateo, 1 p. m., Friday, April 17, by Seventeenth District California Congress of Parents and Teachers must be made to district reciprocity chairman, Mrs. B. D. Ralston, Route 1, Box 311, Redwood City, by April 13. Approximately 200 guests usually attend this annual luncheon.

SUNRISE SERVICES AT ROSE BOWL AT REDWOOD SUNDAY

People Of All Denominations From All Parts Of County To Take Part On Easter Morning.

For many peninsula residents, Easter observance will begin with attendance at sunrise services at 5:39 a. m., next Sunday, in Emerald Lake Bowl, west of Redwood City at the base of the 84-foot illuminated cross.

A call to worship by trumpets will open the rites. An orchestral selection by the Redwood City Congregational Church orchestra will follow. Mayor Charles G. Lambert of Redwood City will deliver the address of welcome, after which the Rev. Schuyler Pratt will give the invocation.

Rev. W. J. Owen's Easter message, "Love's Greatest Triumph," will follow congregational singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Rev. Charles H. Gatchell's pronouncement of the benediction will conclude the rites.

Members of churches of all denominations are invited to the services. Standing room for 12,000 persons is available in the terraced bowl. Five thousand machines can be parked nearby. The road to Emerald Lake has recently been widened and smoothed by the county engineer's office.

Some of Topnotchers of the Turf Have Made History During the Progress of the Spring Meeting.

Tomorrow will see the last day of the spring meeting at Tanforan. The crowds and play at this meeting have been greater than ever before since racing was brought back in this state. It is believed that a record crowd will be on hand the closing day to witness the running of the $10,000 Marchbank Handicap. A great card has been prepared.

From out of the West may go a running horse to carry the hopes of this section and Western Canada in the sixty-second running of that famous turf classic—the Kentucky Derby of May 2. And this horse is Indian Broom, the fleet-footed and stout-hearted three year old son of Brooms from the Donnacoma mare Kawita. Indian Broom, owned by Maj. Austin C. Taylor, Vancouver millionaire sportsman, is the latest sensation of the Tanforan season. Now he is considered a real threat to Top Row in the running of the $10,000 Marchbank Handicap of April 11, the Tanforan closing day.

"If Indian Broom performs up to expectations in the Marchbank get ready to head for Kentucky," was the word flashed by Major Taylor from Vancouver to Derrill Cannon, who is training the Taylor string here.

Nothing short of phenomenal was Indian Broom's performance here in winning the Peninsula Handicap, one mile, last Saturday. He laughed at all opposition, so good was he on a track that was heavy and holding just the sort of a racing strip that might be encountered at Churchill Downs early next month. Winning by five open lengths and conceding chunks of weight to other horses in the Peninsula, Indian Broom ran the mile in 1:40, really fast time for a drying course.

Now for the Marchbank Handicap of next Saturday Indian Broom will be favored by the light impost of 94 pounds and will have the leading Tanforan apprentice rider—Basil James to pilot him. Can Top Row, until last Saturday rated as a very short price for the Marchbank, give Indian Broom 30 pounds? This is a moot question. Top Row, "Little Giant of the Turf," takes the top weight of 124 pounds in the Marchbank.

SCOUT BAND CELEBRATES ITS ANNIVERSARY

Just nineteen years ago the San Francisco Boy Scout Band came into existence and at a time when preparations for the Council's summer camp program were under way.

Rehearsals were conducted under the huge pines and Douglas firs at a camp site near Olema, Marin County, which within two years was entirely too small to accommodate as much as 25 per cent of the applicants for summer camp.

The band, true enough, had an all year program in its early years, but at camp with the colorful Indian ceremonies, often guided by an Indian chieftan, morning colors, and the Flag ceremony each evening and by no means least the Campfire programs, gave the band opportunity for service second to none. And then, too, the band did not pass up the eats and swims and special treats.

With Chief Hanson keeping in mind that with work must be play the band has carried on through the thick and thin of good and bad years.

Many of the instruments that were secured through the generosity of the late Jesse W. Lillenthal, who was then president of the San Francisco Area Council, are still in use.

Today, the band is actively engaged in preparations for a Birthday celebration and are to bring into its membership nineteen new members—one for each year.

The biggest event of the Anniversary Year will take place at Camp Royanah on Saturday, June 27, when many former members will be on hand to help make the music go its round and round.

Judge George J. Steiger, chairman of the Music Committee, Boy Scouts of America heartily endorses the statement.

"A Boy who blows a horn will never blow a safe."

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fire-side, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts, a chauffeur, Evans, a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there.

"Twin Bays Golf Club," replied the gentleman. "It's only about three miles up this road."

"Well," the Duke suggested, "if you're in a hurry, why don't you let me take you there? Then Evans and I can come back, and have another try at this. If Evans can't do anything, I'll send a mechanic from the village."

"That's very kind of you, but I've a better idea. You say you're hungry, too. Why don't you lunch with us, and leave your man to do the rest?"

"Swell!" said the Duke. "Evans, drive us to the Twin Bays Golf Club, and then come back to this job."

"You know what to do, Bates," he continued to his man. "Come on; let's get in!"

Barry turned round to look for the girl in the green dress. She was whispering to Evans, the other side of the stalled car.

As they strolled up the road: "You're Mr. Ridder, aren't you?" the girl asked.

And before Barry could reply, she went on: "Your man told me. I thought I recognized the car."

"John Ridder's son!" exclaimed the white-haired gentleman. "Well, I am surprised! So you've made it up with your father, have you? You must have heard him speak of me. I'm Judge Hambidge."

For a moment, Barry considered disclaiming his bogus identity. But what was the use? He could see Evans' listening ears through the half-open window between them and the driver's seat, and he wanted to get to Montauk Point.

"Not Judge Curtis Hambidge?" he said, omitting to add that he had seen the name in yesterday's newspaper.

"The same," replied the Judge. "Your father and I are—well, we've known each other since he came down to Southampton, three years ago. This is my daughter, Patricia. Pat, for short, though it takes courage to call her that."

He laughed. Patricia looked straight ahead. "Where is your father?"

"On his way to Bad Nauheim."

"That heart of his, eh? Always told him it would cut up again some day." He leaned forward, and wound up the window behind Evans' ears.

"Well, I'm glad you two got together at last. It's been killing your mother. She spoke to me about it—privately. Pat and I are the only people in Southampton who know that John Ridder's got a son. He wouldn't mention it, and wouldn't let anyone else mention it. I tried. I couldn't act that way to a boy of mine, I said; 'no matter what he did. Flat on his uppers, somewhere in Florida, and you in a big empty house on Long Island.' . . . I suppose you're going to spend the season here, now."

"I don't know—yet," answered the Duke.

"Well, I would. This is your chance. Make good, and the old man'll be ashamed of himself when he comes back. Haven't got a job, anywhere, have you?"

"I'll bet he dances wonderfully," said the girl.

She had been taking him in, out of the corner of her eye, and now she paid him this compliment with a quiet scorn that was as subtle as her perfume.

"I had a job a few months ago," observed the Duke.

"What happened?"—with a disarming smile. "Did they want you to work?"

"You're being very rude, my dear," the Judge admonished. "The truth is that Patricia's rather fed-up on our young men. And she's heard a few pretty wild stories about you."

They had reached the club now. "Get Judge Hambidge's car running," the Duke instructed Evans, "and then you and Bates get something to eat, and bring both cars back here."

"Not later than two o'clock," said the Judge.

A moment afterward, he was writing "John Clarke Ridder, Jr., in the guest-book."

"You've got me all wrong," Barry told the girl in the green dress. "I'm not exactly a rich man's son."

"No?" said the girl. "That's nice!"

She was rude. And extremely beautiful. "Hard-boiled," thought the Duke. "There's one lady I'd like to tame."

Together, they strolled through the wide Colonial foyer of the club, and into its white and deserted dining room.

"Early yet," commented the Judge. "Southampton doesn't get going before the end of June. Pleasant club, though. We're opening our house next week. Just ran down today to have the water turned on, and all that sort of thing. How's your place? Still got Willetts?"

"Yes."

"Good servant, Willetts. Your father lays him off all winter, and goes to live in a hotel, but Willetts comes back every spring. How about a little salmon salad, Mr. Ridder?"

"Salmon salad—with mayonnaise, please."

He smiled, remembering yesterday's hot-dog at Huntington.

"Rather a coincidence, meeting you here," he said. "I'd just seen your name in The Globe."

The Judge's brow clouded. "Yes. Your father's newspaper. They say I'm a Tammany Judge, robbing the peepul."

"It's always easy to work up excitement about the under-dog," Patricia cut in. "As though it really mattered what happened to the under-dog."

"You don't like rich men's sons," the Duke remarked, "and you don't like under-dogs. Just whom do you like, Miss Hambidge?"

"People who make their way."

"Can't you feel sorry for people who don't?"

"Not very," she admitted, frankly. "Nobody does. Most of us pretend to. I don't know why. They're merely the brake on civilization. They don't count. Civilization does."

The hard-boiled minx! "I suppose you'll be keeping bachelor's hall most of the summer," suggested the Judge. "The Nauheim treatment is eight weeks, I believe. Well, you'll have to make yourself at home with us. I'm a widower, and away a good part of the time, so you and Patricia can fight things out on the tennis court." He glanced at his watch. "We'll be down for good the first of next week. How about dining with us Thursday?"

"Please do," smiled the girl. "I should be delighted," said the Duke.

"At eight? Don't dress. We wear flannels most of the time out here."

"Flannels it is," said the Duke. Purring softly, as though nothing had ever been wrong with its vitals, the Judge's car drew up to the steps.

"Until Thursday, then, and thank you for the lift. I'm mighty glad to have met John Ridder's boy."

"I'm glad, too," added Patricia, giving him her hand. "Maybe I'll learn to like rich men's sons."

"Or under-dogs."

"That sounds a little more improbable," said the girl.

They drove away. Evans' humor seemed to have improved with luncheon.

"Montauk Point?" he asked, holding open the car door.

"No," the Duke answered. "I've changed my mind about Montauk Point. Some other day. I think we'll go home now."

CHAPTER II

Well, of all the mad resolutions! "I'm going to wind up in prison," reflected the Duke. "And, as a good many wiser men have done, on account of a girl."

"A snip of a girl, at that!" He grinned at that.

Where was he going to get flannels? Or even a clean shirt? How could he hope to get away with this for a whole week? "Let's think it out quietly. Papa and Mama are safe in Bad Nauheim. Probably for a couple of months. The real John Ridder isn't coming to Southampton."

"Stop at the railway station," he instructed the chauffeur. "I've got to see about my bag."

But, oddly enough, the bag hadn't arrived.

"A big tan-leather suit case?" echoed the baggage-master. "You're going to have a hard time locating it, unless you can find your check."

"Must have dropped it from my pocket when I pulled out my railway ticket on the train." His Grace told Willetts at dinner. Willetts had been very apologetic about sending the master away for lunch. "It's cook, sir. She's new, and, what with the kitchen all upside down—"

"Don't worry," interrupted the Duke. "I had a capital time. But what are we going to do about clothes, Willetts?"

"Well," the butler responded, "there's your father's tailor, sir, Crowell, on Fifty-first street, just east of the Avenue. You could start an account there, sir. And Mr. Ridder Senior gets his haberdashery at Bartlett's, and his shoes at Kennedy's."

"All that takes time," Barry objected, "and I'm going out to dinner next Thursday. And Thursday's five days off. I haven't a shirt to my back, Willetts, or anything else but my father's purple pajamas."

Willetts' face brightened.

"If you can wear those, sir, I don't see why you can't wear Mr. Ridder's linen—in an emergency, sir. There's a whole high-boy full of it in your closet, sir. And he's got a dozen summer suits in that cedar chest."

"Flannels, too?"

"Oh, plenty of flannels," answered

Willetts. "And golf trousers. They're sure to fit."

Both men smiled. Wonderful what a smile would do. His own broad grin undoubtedly explained the friendliness of the butler, and he himself had fallen victim to the same upturning of a pair of carmine lips. He had resented Patricia Hambidge wholeheartedly until she smiled. He still resented her, but he knew exactly how many days it was to Thursday.

The case against Evans was that he never smiled.

"What's the matter with Evans?" asked the Duke, using his fork on a morsel of sweetbread sous cloche. "Matter, sir?"

"He seems morose," said the Duke. "The fact is, Evans' wife is very ill, sir."

"In Patchogue?"

"Yes, sir. We left her there. That's what made us late last night."

"Go on."

"That's about all, sir. Mrs. Evans has been ill some time. It's a kind of anemia, sir. Evans didn't want to leave her. When he found he was coming out here—only yesterday, sir—he asked Mr. Ridder if he could bring Mrs. Evans. There's quite a big room over the garage. And Mr. Ridder said, 'No.' He's—well, he's firm, Mr. Ridder is. I guess you know that, sir. And then Evans decided to put her up in the village for a few days. But she was taken bad at Patchogue, sir, and we had to leave her at a hotel. Evans was a good deal upset. They've only been married a few months."

"I see," said the Duke. He thought about the matter all through dinner.

As he was quitting the table, "Willetts," he said, "I think you'd better tell Evans to go back to Patchogue, and get his wife. Tonight, if she's fit to travel. Or tomorrow morning. My father won't know anything about it, and it seems a pity to waste that room over the garage."

"Yes, sir," said Willetts. "Thank you, sir. Anything else I can do for you, sir?"

He went on thinking about it before the fire.

"Houses without people, and people without houses."

Funny world!

"If I belonged here—" the Duke repeated to himself.

"The trouble with people like my father," he ruminated, "and Pat, is that they don't know what it is not to have enough. They've never known, or they've forgotten. We must've experienced things to have any feeling about them. If you see a man shot, you're horrified. But if you read about fifty thousand men killed in battle, it doesn't mean much to you."

"My father—"

And, suddenly, he realized that, when he said "My father," he was thinking of John Clarke Ridder.

For the twentieth time since the beginning of this astonishing adventure, his mouth spread itself into that broad grin.

"If I stayed here a month," he reflected, "I'd be calling the old man 'Dad.' Already, I'm calling the girl 'Pat.' Making myself at home—that's what I am. Better clear out after dinner next Thursday. Or after breakfast Friday. I'm simply ruining my appetite for baked beans."

Willetts interrupted his meditations. "Evans would like to know if you'd see him, sir."

"Of course. Tell him to come up."

He had an embarrassing ten minutes with the chauffeur—embarrassing, but very heart-warming. The surly Evans was transformed. Barry never had seen anyone else so grateful. "You must have thought I was pretty grouchy this morning, sir, but I was worried sick. I kept thinking how the missis looked when I left her last night. I didn't dare quit, on her account. If it'd been just me, I'd've starved to be with her."

"There's likely to be an awful row when my father gets home," warned the Duke.

"We can clear out before then," Evans hesitated. "The missis ought to be all right in a few weeks. It's wonderful, this sea air."

"When do you want to go for her?"

"I telephoned from the village, and the doctor thinks she'd be all right to make the trip in the morning, sir."

"Tell you what we'll do," said the Duke. "I've got to go to town to get some clothes and things. I'll ride with you to Patchogue, and take the train there. You can bring Mrs. Evans home, and I'll take another train out from New York."

Evans tried to speak, but without success.

"That's all now. You can figure what train I get from Patchogue, and tell Willetts. Good night."

At the door, Evans turned.

"I'll get square with you for this some day," he said, and gulped hard, and left the room.

"Gosh," mused the Duke; "I'd stay a month, if I thought I could do a few more things like that."

Mr. Crowell was most obliging, though a bit suspicious at first. John Clarke Ridder Senior's blue summer suit clung to his bogus son almost comically, and John Clarke Ridder Senior's shirt was choking him. "You made these togs for my father," the Duke remarked, "and I put 'em on this morning because I've just come up from Florida, and lost my baggage en route. I've got to have a suit by next Thursday. Can it be done?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Can you make a pair of flannel trousers by then?"

"I think so."

"Go to it," said the Duke. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Ink spots on the fingers may be instantly removed with a little ammonia. Rinse the hands after washing in clear water.

Icing for cake may be prevented from cracking by adding one teaspoon of cream to each unbeaten egg. Stir all together, then add sugar until the icing is as stiff as desired.

Set your alarm clock to notify you when baking period is completed. You may then continue your work in the other part of the house without worry.

If dirt becomes ground into a waxed floor moisten a cloth with turpentine and rub the turpentine well into the floor until the wax is removed, then wash the floor anew and polish it.

To remove egg stains from a linen tablecloth soak it in cold water before putting it into hot soapsuds.

A little vinegar poured into a saucepan in which onions have been fried will remove the odor of onions from the pan.

A worn whisk broom trimmed down to its stiffest part makes a very good scrubbing brush for the sink.

To remove stains from a vase or bottle, put in two tablespoons of salt and four tablespoons of vinegar and shake well. Let stand for several hours, empty and rinse out in hot soap suds.

Baking powder biscuits, corn breads and muffins may be freshened by brushing them all over with cold water and heating in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for five or ten minutes just before serving.

Soft cheese may be grated by pushing it through a sieve with a spoon.

Largest Push Cart Market

New York city has the largest pushcart market in the world. It consists of 12,000 peddlers who do a gross volume of business of more than $500,000 a week, selling a vast variety of articles that range from octopi to oil paintings.—Collier's Weekly.

TALLEST STRUCTURE

Until New York's Chrysler building came along in 1930, with its height of 1,046 feet, the Eiffel Tower in Paris, 984 feet, was the world's tallest structure. Later, of course the Empire State building topped both with 1,248 feet.

A good deal of discomfort arises from over-sensitiveness about what people may say of you or your actions. Many unhappy persons seem to imagine that they are always in an amphitheater, with the assembled world as spectators; whereas all the while, they are playing to empty benches.—Sir A. Helps.

We Need A New Deal!

For a number of years our city has suffered from a serious epidemic of "Yesism" in civic official quarters. One man said O. K., and the other four said "Me Too." The only man on the Council to do his own thinking was Councilman J. J. Fahey.

It is to be hoped that out of the coming election will be evolved a different type of councilmen to represent the interests of our citizens.

J. J. Fahey and Edmund Cavagnaro will prove to be such men when elected.

We have been long suffering in tolerating this condition of affairs. And we believe that the people should now "do something about it."

It is also to be hoped that those chosen by the people at this election will be men who will not allow themselves to be dominated by the will of the former "master mind" without whose dictation nothing could "come to pass" in our city government. The desperate efforts to retain control of this power by devious methods, such as the passage of new ordinances, with the evident purpose of hoodwinking the electors and securing support of an apparent "lost cause" should not be longer tolerated or abetted by the voters of this community.

The election of men to the council other than those known to be definitely outside the domination of this "master mind" and his hired henchmen is the only way the community can rid itself of the "mee too" or "yes men" in the city government.

No person or set of persons who aspire to election for the purpose of doing the bidding of a "dictator" are any asset to any city, large or small, in governmental affairs.

Men elected to public office should have sufficient intelligence to do their own thinking and not be mouthpieces for a man "who knows it all."

A final cleanup is imperative at this time.

"Hanging on," especially to the "pork barrel," seems to be the acme of "efficiency and economy" in the minds of some public officials.

EASTER SERVICE AT NAZARENE CHURCH

Once again the glad Easter season has rolled around. The Grace Church of the Nazarene, Vista and Santa Barbara plans for large attendance. Last Easter 285 were present in Sunday School, with many of these remaining for the worship service. This Easter the attendance should be over 300. An Easter program has been arranged for the Sunday School hour, which begins at 9:45 a. m. Then a great service has been planned for the 11 o'clock hour. Easter music and song will be a special feature. The pulpit subject will be "Christ Resurrected and Recognized."

Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock the young people of the church will render a beautiful Easter pageant. All are invited to attend these services.

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

A group of Christian business men in San Francisco in a radio broadcast on KYA read this statement:

"Our committee has asked me as their chairman to give the clergy and the laity... on the air today an idea of the planks to be found in our platform."

"We say that our fellow Christian laymen—sitting demurely in a church pew Sunday morning, if the weather is bad, so that they can't play golf, and hearing the minister deliver his regular sermon—are not following Jesus Christ. It leads directly to the appellation, true of so many Christian churches and groups today, 'Many are cold, and a few are frozen.'"

"To the minister we say: You are to blame for much of the excess program machinery and ineffectual whirling of wheels in your own church group and denomination. The business world that we are more closely in touch with than you are, passes on unimpaired of shallow religionists who make a noise like sounding brass and tinkling symbols and seldom indicate a spirit of 'love of souls.' For power with God and with men in 1936:

"Leave movies out of the church and to the movie theater."

"Leave book reviews out of the evening services and return them to the Book Gallery."

"Forget the Sunday evening Question Box on 'Is Hauptmann Guilty?' and answer the question 'What Must I Do To Be Saved?'"

"Instead of majoring on politics, civic-betterment, pacifism, prohibition, and cleaning up a sin-sick world, put first things first. Preach the

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

By Chief A. P. Chesney

Frequently the smokepipe causes fire by igniting nearby materials of wood construction, either because of improper installation or overheating. It is important, therefore, that stove or furnace pipes should not be close enough to woodwork or to wooden ceilings or partitions to heat them unduly.

If any nearby surface is found too hot for comfort when the hand is placed upon it, it is a sign of danger.

No smokepipe should pass through a floor, or through a non fireproof roof without insulation, where it passes through a wood lath and plaster, or other combustion partition, a section of the partition should be removed and the smokepipe so placed that no part of it shall be nearer than six inches to any combustible part of the wall.

The section of the wall thus removed should be replaced by a terra cotta collar covered by metal and an air space of at least two inches on all sides of chimney.

When an opening in a chimney flue is not occupied or used by a smokepipe, this opening should be sealed with a metal cap, not stuffed with paper or rags.

More than 3000 gallons of water per minute is required to operate Rainbow Fountain at the 1936 California Pacific International Exposition at San Diego.

Word, convict of sin, present the Saviour; the red-blooded men who read the papers and know the world is bruised, battered and bewildered will accept Christ, one by one.

"If you don't, the laymen will run the life-boats and you can run the hulk."

CALVARY CHURCH SUNDAY SERVICES

Easter services will be conducted on Sunday at the Calvary Baptist Church, 5724 Mission street. Several musical numbers will be rendered at the 11 o'clock service, the choir singing Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light;" Mrs. Madie Morgan will sing "Hosanna," by Jules Granier; and Mrs. Anna Dawson will play "Easter Song" as the offertory. Pastor Miles Dawson will preach the Easter sermon, "Even As Isaac Lived."

At the 7:45 evening evangelistic service, vocal and instrumental music will accompany the sermon, "The Master's Own Resurrection Sermon," preached by the pastor.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science Churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, April 12, on the subject "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?"

The Golden Text will be: "All flesh shall see the salvation of God" (Luke 3:6). Bible selections will include the following passage from James 5: 13, 15, 16: "Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. . . . And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "To enter into the heart of prayer, the door of the erring senses must be closed. Lips must be mute and materialism silent, that man may have audience with Spirit, the divine Principle, Love, which destroys all error" (p. 15).

CRUDE TENTS ARE BEST FOR SCHOOLS, LAPPLANDERS FIND

Abisko, Sweden-Lappland, in the north of Europe, is one of the few places in the world where school houses can be built too well. The Lapp school is merely a tent-like shed with birch branches on the floor for beds, an open hearth and the crudest fittings.

Years ago when better school houses were tried, it was discovered that when Lapp children had to sleep in beds, take baths and eat fresh vegetables, they caught colds that usually developed into pneumonia. Officials therefore wisely provided that schools here should be built as nearly like the average Lapp home as possible.

Education in Lapland is a wondrous affair. The people depend on their herds of reindeer for a living, and when these make their migrations, the family must quickly pack its belongings and follow dutifully behind. Teacher and school must do the same thing, for Sweden takes good care to see that the Lapps receive an education.

In summer, however, the Lapps have a comparatively easy time of it. Then they settle down by the shores of lakes or on mountain slopes, and there it is that visitors to Abisko for the midnight sun see this curious race.

and bucket-shops, which they formerly used to entice the dollars from the pockets of men and women. As a consequence they have resorted to the simple expedient of using this apparently harmless game at ten cents a card in the extraction, not only of the dollars of the adult population, but the dimes of the children as well.

To verify these statements you need but see some of the establishments which are being conducted in a few of the cities in Southern California where Bingo is played. Boys and girls of immature age are rushing directly from their classrooms to place their nickles and dimes upon the Bingo counters for the benefit of the Racketeers under the false hope of winning from five to twenty-five dollars.

I have in my hand a confession by a man who at one time operated a Bingo game in Reno, and in it he frankly discloses the manner in which the public is defrauded. I will read a portion of it to you. "The gullible public hasn't a chance for the house sees to it that a planted Shill receives the winnings, and back it goes to the operator of the game." This continues day after day and the men running the game have made as high as five hundred dollars in a single night. This sounds unbelievable but he further goes on to state that "they made a profit of fifty thousand dollars in less than six months." Now to all of you good mothers and fathers who are listening in, I want to say that I know that many of you do not believe that your sons and daughters are in danger for the reason that such an evil does not exist in your community, but we who live in Daly City thought the same until one fine day we were informed that despite the fact that the game is illegal, our City Council had granted (by a vote of four to one, Councilman Fahey alone voting "NO") a license to some individuals to operate such a game, and had also passed an ordinance forbidding more than one to operate, thereby giving to the privileged ones the exclusive right to operate.

In our city the business license is twelve dollars a year which entitles a person to conduct any legitimate business. However, in the case of Bingo, the license was to be four thousand dollars per year. This circumstance alone appeared to many to be conclusive evidence that the facts could not bear the light of day, nor the searchlight of public opinion. Fortunately the people of Daly City arose in wrath and by use of the referendum compelled the revocation of the license and the rescission of the ordinance.

Daly City holds its election next Tuesday, April 14, and I wish to urge all of the men and women of this city to go to the polls on that day and vote for John J. Fahey and Edmund Cavnagaro, two men who have fought the good fight for us in keeping this menace from our children, men who will keep our City free from the element which operates such games.

At this time there is in my mind another matter which I believe to be of paramount importance. This is the lack of playground and recreational facilities for our children. In recent years too many instances of absolute disregard for this problem have been called to my attention, and I believe that the facts should be called to the attention of you mothers and fathers who are so vitally interested. In the past our City fathers have allowed many golden opportunities to slip by, simply by lack of foresight and preparation for the needs of the future. When land was more readily available, ideal sites could have been purchased for reasonable prices. But such matters were evidently not deemed to be sufficiently important by our City Councilmen in days gone by, and as a result deplorable conditions exist in our City today. We have not a single playground nor park set aside for the children, nor has the City Council even acquired sites to be used at a future time. For twenty years the present administration has been in office, and during that time the problem has been repeatedly called to their attention. With the result that the City is now almost completely built up and the greater portion of the available sites utilized for homes.

However, the omissions of the past will not excuse neglect at the present time, and we must now consider this problem, regardless of the predicament in which we have been placed by the refusal of the Council to care for our needs in this respect. We must look to the future and now is the time to acquire sites for our future needs. We cannot overlook the fact that playgrounds and recreational facilities are an essential need of every City, Village, or Hamlet. We must have them, and it is up to the City Council to provide them.

The reports from Juneville Authorities in all parts of the Nation stress the necessity for supervised recreation for the growing child. They urge the formation of recreational centers and playgrounds wherein this can be accomplished. They show that juvenile delinquencies predominate in communities in which supervised playgrounds are not available. It is in such places that gangs and hoodlums crowd originate, the members of which later fill our penitentiaries, and all because in adolescent years they were denied the proper places in which to congregate. We today are responsible for what is to happen tomorrow, and unless we demand that our City Officials attend to this evergrowing need, we shall see the day when organized crime will prevail over law and order.

We hear so much of the Low per capita tax rates. We hear our City Fathers harp upon that age old brocade. We hear them declare that it is a drawing card which brings people to our city, but I for one disagree. If we have nothing to show for the taxes which we pay and we find that things which are absolutely essential to our wellbeing are neglected, how can we truthfully invite people to live with us. We cannot expect them to be as lenient as we ourselves have been in the past.

Once again to the mothers of Daly City I say, in the name of your children, go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for John J. Fahey and Edmund Cavnagaro, because they have pledged themselves to work out a solution to this vitally important problem. We have given the present administration twenty years to do something, and it is yet to be done. We cannot live on empty promises any longer. We refuse to live on empty promises any longer. We must have results and we will have results and I sincerely believe that in urging you to vote for Mr. Fahey and Mr. Cavnagaro on next Tuesday I am only awakening you to the realization that you should have made this change in administration long ago.

Please remember that as Mothers and Fathers, you are, and should be, ever alert to promote those things essential to the full and complete development of your child. Recreation is as essential as is schooling in the shaping of a well rounded and balanced manhood or womanhood. All things which are productive of this result you should work for, all things which tend to defeat the accomplishment of that result should be fought with all of the force and energy which we are capable of mustering. In parting may I again beg of you to vote for the two gentlemen who have pledged their support to our cause, John J. Fahey and Edmund Cavnagaro.

ELEVEN OF DALY CITY SCOUTS VISIT IN MARIN COUNTY

With the Scoutmaster, Troop Chaplain, the Rev. John R. Stevenson, and a visiting Scouter, Mr. Straughn, in attendance, eleven Scouts of Troop 151 spent two days at Camp Kent, Marin County camp site operated by the Presbyterian denomination.

Sleeping under the stars, campfire stunts and entertainment, swimming in "the ol' swimmin' hole," exploration hikes and eats kept the boys busy during the two days and one night they were away.

They all arrived home happy, healthy and not too weary Tuesday evening, in time to finish the day with some of "mother's" cooking.

Among those on the overnight trip were Senior Patrol Leader Leon Fletcher, Patrol Leaders "Buddy" Olesen and Edwin Halcrow, Scouts Donald Jenkins, "Rusty" Bosch, and Candidates John Dake, John Allen, Laurence Christiansen, Dwain Tyler, with Glenn Goode and Jack Edgar as visitors.

A STORY IN RHYME TYPE OF THE TIME

(WE WONDER WHY?)

Upon the hill there was a store
With Christmas trees about the door,
And boxes, too, were on display—
Quite difficult to pass that way.

Two burly cops, then passing by,
Called out the boss and queried why.
"Fifty bucks, old boy, you pay,
Or in you go and in you stay."

But—inconsistencies galore!
List to the tale of another store,
With dozens of boxes out in front,
Blocking the sidewalk—what a stunt!

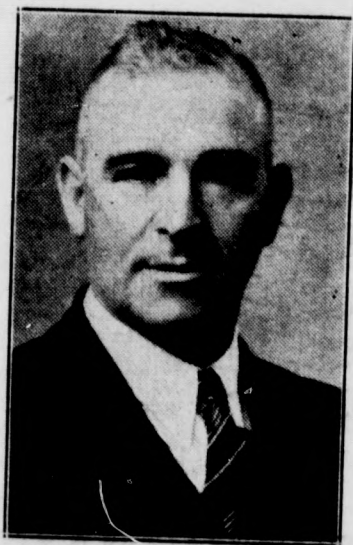

And our uniformed "workers" (?)
Each wearing a star
Said nary a word to this bold "Lochinvar."

A good fellow he is, like the true knight of old;
He wants to do right, but needs to be told.

What a pity it is in this city of ours—
Some get all the weeds and others the flowers.

Let's clean up the council—put honest men there!
A couple of "no men" could make a repair.
